INDIANS MAKE GOOD WITH LITTLE HELP

ARCH-DEACON A. L. HAZLETT HAS FAITH IN THE FUTURE OF THE RED MAN

If there is one man in Nevada who is an optimist on the Indian that man is Arch-Deacon A. L. Hazlett, of the Episcopal church who has had greater opportunities to observe the native Nevada in home surroundings than almost any other man in the west. Mr. Hazlett has the distinction of being one of the few men versed in the various dialects of the Pah-Utes and therefore is closer to the tribes than most white men.

"The Indian on reservations, does he improve? The question is often asked," he repeated: "Is the condition of the Indian really improved by the efforts made in his behalf, on reservations, maintained by the federal government?"

"Having an experience of more than ten years in the work of preparing the red man for citizenship and having at this time under my spiritual care more than six hundred Indians at Pyramid Lake reservation, I feel that I have had abundant opportunity to observe the effect of government care, in the case of the Pah-Ute, or Piute as he is commonly called.

"The physical improvement in the reservation Indian is quite marked and tuberculosis, so prevalent among all the tribes, is not making headway among this people. It may be said to be in check—trachoma, and affection of the eyes, so common among all Indians and especially in the case of those living off the reservations become totally blind, is so successfully treated at Pyramid Lake, that at present there are but three pupils under the doctors care, and a government inspector, visiting the agency recently, said that the eyes of these Indians were in better condition than those on any other reservation visited by him.

The Indian population on this reservation is steadily increasing, there were eight births in excess of the deaths last year, and what is true of this reservation is true of all, rather than a "vanishing" people, the Indian is everywhere increasing in numbers.

"On the material side, the reservation Indian shows a good balance. At Pyramid and also at Schurz, he is increasing his bands of horses and herds of cattle, and improving, them with good stock. One young man at Pyramid Lake has thirteen or fourteen head of as good looking cattle as you will find anywhere; the farm houses and buildings of all kinds are well improved, and it is not an uncommon thing for an Indian rancher to have twenty and sometimes thirty acres of alfalfa and half that acreage in wheat or barley. In all cases except those of the very old or decrepit, the Indian is self-supporting, receiving no aid whatever from the government.

"Educationally, the time is equally divided between the study of text books and manual training, the former an advance is made to the fifth or sixth grade, and in the latter there is a development in such crafts and arts, as result in well trained carpenters, blacksmiths, electricians and farmers. The machinery of all kinds on the reservation is run by Indian boys and there are three expert stationary engineers at Pyramid among the students.

"As to my own work, I may say that the Indian is brought to an understanding of the fundamental principles of Christianity and that there is a higher trend in morals is very evident. I have baptized nearly a hundred of them and joined many couples in marriage. The church of St. Mary the Virgin at the agency is crowded at every service, the Indians making the responses and rendering the choral parts very creditably.

"On the whole the outlook is very encouraging, and, while the development may seem slow, we must remember, that from the savagery to culture, required a thousand years for the white race, and that even now, judging from the nature of the argument in Europe, the work of civilization has just made a beginning."

AMUSEMENTS

BUTLER THEATER

The program at the Butler this evening will consist of a Charlie Chaplin comedy which will please all the little folks and some of the big ones, and an Essanay Big-Four Feature entitled "The Vultures of Society," featuring Lillian Drew, Marguerite Clayton, E. H. Calvert and Ernest Maupin. It is a realistic presentation of a phase of metropolitan life of today, showing society criminals who rob the homes they visit—vultures who hunt defenseless girls. Down deep underneath the surface of society in the larger cities there lurks constantly an element of romance and intrigue more strange than any adventure in the open. In this powerful five-act drama, the mist has been lifted from the machinations of the masqueraders in the homes of the wealthy and a plain story of an odd phase of American life is revealed, and while the drama is made up of a series of amazing circumstances, there is not one scene that does not happen in everyday life.

Tomorrow, one of the famous Paramount-Bray cartoon and silhouette fantasies, entitled "Haunts For Rent." It is something which is brand new in the production of motion pictures, a feature in itself, and something that is absolutely sure to please everyone. The big feature will be a Paramount production "The Incurable Duke," with the popular stage and screen favorite John Barrymore in the leading role. Mr. Barrymore is the peer of all interpreters of refined comedy on the screen, favorite of all lovers of clean, wholesome fun, so if you want to laugh, and laugh hard, and a lot, don't fail to see this sterling comedy; it is the kind the public enjoys.

Monday night only, The Los Angeles Trio, a triple musical team, will endeavor to entertain you with songs and musical selections.
